

Goldenlocks' Swashbuckling Summer Reading BINGO!

Brought to you by author April Jones Prince

Ahoy, readers! Do you know how Goldenlocks became such a clever crew member, who can row a ship, doctor up a pot of delicious gruel, hammer nails, and mend a hammock? By reading and doing, of course! Methinks her smarts and can-do spirit might inspire you to do some reading of your own. (And as you do, please look for JUICY WORDS and file them away for later writing. Because readers are writers, mateys!) Can you score a bingo? Can you complete the whole card?

Read in a hammock (or bed)	Read a tale of adventure	Read while eating gruel or hardtack	Read a mate's favorite book	Read in the privy (the bathroom!)
Read a comic	Read flopped on your belly	Read a biography (of a pirate?)	Read a fractured fairy tale	Read at the library
Read to an animal (real or not!)	Read a favorite picture book	FREE	Read a how-to book or article	Read at the beach or ocean
Read in a piratical voice— aargh!	Read a limerick or other poem	Read in the crow's nest or in a tree	Read a magazine	Read with a torch (flashlight)
Read a treasure map or directions	Read about science	Read to a family member	Read three jokes, me hearties!	Read on a pirate ship(!) or other boat
